

*W*isdom, a series of resolutions, in regard to the abolition of slavery has been introduced to this convention by one of our trustees; and whereas, it is impossible for us to concur thoroughly to consider and finally act upon the resolution during its present session, we do therefore adjourn to meet again in a very important session, to consider and adopt such resolutions as will, however, be referred to the committee of publican, with directions to print them with the proceedings of this convention, for the deliberation of the entire party, and of the whole American people.

(This will be published hereafter.)

A committee on application of the people of color of Detroit, to aid in the erection of a meeting-house, and the building of a school for colored children, N. Y. have established a manual labor school, for the free people of color, reported that the applications were sent to the favorable consideration of the Board.

Samuel M. May, W. W. Willard, S. N. Southall, and S. C. Miller, are in charge of publication, and that the proceedings of the convention be published under their direction, in such form as they may deem best.

On motion of Hon. James G. Carter, it was unanimously

Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be presented to the Hon. Samuel Fessenden, president thereof, for his able, impartial, and eloquent address, which has performed the arduous duties of the chair during the sitting of the convention.

On Friday evening at 10 o'clock, the convention adjourned without day.

SAMUEL FESSENDEN, President,
JAMES G. CARTER, Secretary,
AUSTIN WILLEY, Secretary.

Correspondence.

For the Liberator Standard.

Mr. WILLEY—In your last paper I find the following statement—"The American Board has taken ground, the subject of slavery, which differs very little, if at all, from that of the Presbyterians."—

In some respects, as it appears to me, there is a wide difference. All that can be said in confirmation of slaves in the ministry adopted by the General Assembly, is as follows:

"The assembly are of opinion,

"that no man can be admitted to

"any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it may be said, "that the Board does

"not go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

But it is evident, that the Board does not

"go far enough in its condemnation of

"slavery, which they have

"spoken upon the subject so fully and

"boldly, and in their documents."

They do indeed, say, "that no man can be

"admitted to any office or trust, who does not

"admit the doctrine of slavery by law,

"which is the chief cause of

"the misery of the slaves."

